WELCOME TO HOMER, ALASKA!

*Imagine a little town
nestled on the shore
of a glistening bay; glaciers and mountains rimming
the shoreline and active volcanoes looming
in the distance...*

Welcome to our town, Homer, Alaska, on stunning Kachemak Bay! Made famous as "The End of the Road" in Tom Bodett's tales, Homer is at the end of the Sterling Highway, 200 miles south of Anchorage, surrounded by wilderness and ocean.

A home base for great fishing ("The Halibut Fishing Capital of the World"), kayaking, bear viewing, hiking, foodie and art vacations, Homer is quickly becoming known as the Eco and Adventure tourism capital of Alaska.

Home to the Discovery Channel's "The Last Frontier" Kilcher family, and homeport to the F/V Time Bandit of "Deadliest Catch" fame, Homer's museums, art galleries, fine dining and seaside accommodations, all help create Alaska-sized memories to last a lifetime.

The Homer Spit ("spit" is a geological landform) features the longest road into ocean waters in the world, and was named one of the best 100 beaches in the United States for its incredible views and variety of wildlife along the 4.5 mile multi-use trail that runs from its base to its tip? the true end of the road on Alaska's Highway 1.

And just across the Bay, less than 10 miles from the Spit, is the state's only designated wilderness park. Local water taxis specialize in bringing outdoor lovers to the trailheads and campgrounds in the park.

This unique combination of location, commerce, beauty, natural resources and wilderness makes Homer a wonderful place to visit, and a great place to live!

We love where we live, and weknow our visitors will too.
